For music, I prefer Beatles and Bon Jovi over others. Some of my favorite songs are:

Beatles
Yesterday - Written by Paul McCartney (credited to Lennon–McCartney), first issued for their U.K. album Help!, and released August, 1965. Yesterday with B-side Act Naturally was released as a U.S. single September, 1965. While it hit #1 on the American chart in 1965, the song first hit the British Top 10 three months after the release of Help!, in a cover version by Matt Monro. The song also appeared on the U.S. album The Beatles - Yesterday and Today, released in June 1966.

McCartney's vocal and acoustic guitar together with a string quartet essentially made for the first solo performance of the band. It remains popular today with more than 2,200 cover versions and is one of the most covered songs in the history of recorded music. Yesterday was voted the best song of the 20th century in a 1999 BBC Radio poll of music experts and listeners and was also voted the No. 1 pop song of all time by MTV and Rolling Stone magazine the following year. In 1997, the song was inducted into the Grammy Hall of Fame. Broadcast Music Incorporated (BMI) asserts that it has been performed over 7 million times in the 20th century alone.

Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds - Written primarily by John Lennon and credited to Lennon–McCartney, for the Beatles' 1967 album Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.

Lennon's son Julian inspired the song with a nursery school drawing he called "Lucy—in the sky with diamonds". Shortly after the song's release, speculation arose that the first letter of each of the title words intentionally spelled LSD. Lennon consistently denied this, insisting the song was inspired by Lewis Carroll's Alice In Wonderland books, a claim repeatedly confirmed by Paul McCartney.

Despite persistent rumors, it was never officially banned by the BBC, and aired contemporaneously on BBC Radio at least once, on 20 May 1967.

Bon Jovi
These Days - A song by American rock band Bon Jovi. It was released in February 1996 as the 6th single from their 1995 album These Days. The song showcases the darker tone that Jon Bon Jovi and Richie Sambora's lyrics sought to achieve with the album. The song begins with a haunting piano progression, deals with homelessness, loss of innocence and the difficulty of keeping up a relationship in the modern age. It is about people out there trying to be understood, to live their dreams.

The single peaked at #7 in the UK, #38 in Australia and #40 on the Euro hot 100 singles chart. According to Wikipedia: "In the U.S., despite selling 1 million copies and certified platinum by the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA), the album wasn't as successful as it was overseas and it peaked at number nine on the Billboard 200"..

The song is present on the DVD Live from London concert at the very end, and during the 2007-2008 Lost Highway Tour, Richie Sambora often took lead vocals on the song and references the difficulties he had been going through over the past year.

These are my 3 personal favorite songs. by Guest Writer Techie5879

PleX Picks

I would like to start off by quoting Fredrick Douglas:
"Once you learn to read, you will be forever free".
Something which a lot of people seem to have forgotten...

My name is PleX and I upload books and occasionally music too, mainly Hip-Hop and Hardstyle (not for softies). I joined KAT about a year ago, and have since become a VUL and SU.

The reason I started uploading was to give something back to the community since I had been torrenting almost everything from movies to TV to software for a couple of years.

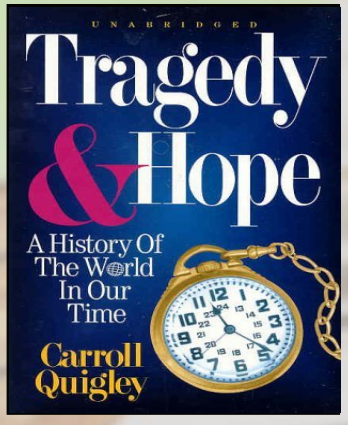
I used to upload everything manually, but a couple of months ago somebody sent me their entire eBook library (+60Gb), and I have since developed an upload tool to speed things up.

That tool is available for everyone right here:
https://kickass.to/community/show/plex-s-upload-tool/

It scrapes the book's meta info from goodreads or library genesis, and uses that data to create a torrent description and upload it to KAT.

Most of my uploads are fiction, those get requested the most. But I also have quite a few academic and non-fiction books. Personally I prefer the latter but I certainly enjoy a good fiction novel as well.

My book recommendation:



"Those who do not remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

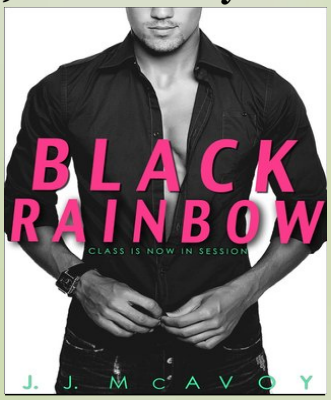
Top 4 most popular books this month:

1) J.J. McAvoy - Black Rainbow



Sweet and steamy new Adult Romance from J.J. McAvoy...After an erotic one-week fling with a musician she meets in a bar, Thea Cunning never expects to see Levi Black again. Then Monday morning comes around, and she discovers that her former lover is not only her professor, but he's also one of the top criminal lawyers in Massachusetts.

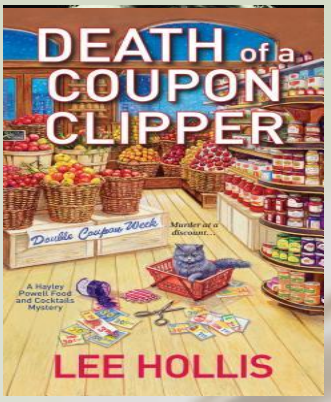
3) Lee Hollis - Death of a Coupon Clipper (A Hayley Powell Food and Cocktails Mystery #3)



Hayley Powell, food and cocktails columnist for Bar Harbor's Island Times, is...well, kind of broke. So when she's selected for that extreme coupon-clipping reality game show coming to town she's thrilled, especially when her competition is nasty nurse Candace Culpepper. But when Haley stumbles across a face-down-in-the-snow Candace, scissors gleaming between her shoulders, she knows the next thing she'll be selected for will probably be a police line-up.

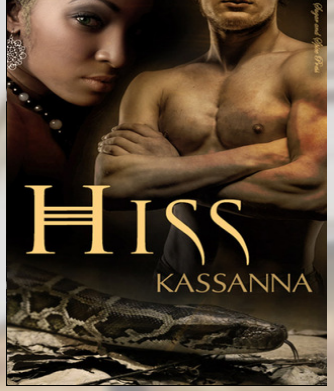
4) Kassanna - Hiss (Pack Rulez #5)



Jamison Conda wanted a mate. Too bad as the newest member of the Shifter Council, he could no longer allocate time to finding one. Until he ran into his ex-lover and her child. Marree Cottons is a shifter who cannot shift. Years ago she left the Constrictor Clutch with a secret. One she'd hoped to hide. Burdened with the knowledge she has a mate who doesn't want her, she thrives as the town vet in Betaille. But when Jamison arrives in town, old feelings resurface. Keeping her secret may be harder than she thought.

Science FICTION

by JayneGunn

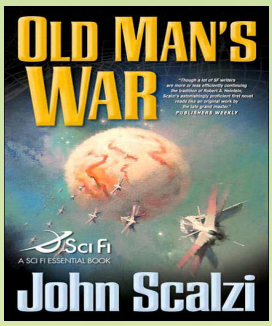
Ender's Game - Orson Scott Card (1985)

First in a series, protagonist Ender Wiggin has the most unique of superpowers: empathy. An off-the-charts genius, Ender is trained in the arts of war, and his ability to understand the enemy from their perspective makes him history's most lethal tactician.
Relatable characters and a plot about the mass extinction of an alien race to ensure humanity's survival, draws the reader away from the printed page and into a new reality.

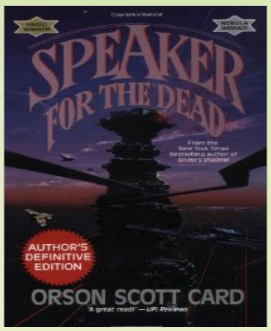
https://kat.cr/orson-scott-card-ender-s-game-epub-t10829285.html



Old Man's War - John Scalzi (2005)

In this first (and most successful) of Scalzi's novels, OMW launches readers from earth into the perilous cosmos, where soldiers are genetically engineered to ensure the species' ability to compete with a myriad of violent aliens for habitable planets.
If you get into transhumanism concepts, such as brain-computer interfacing, DNA-coded nano tech, and mind transference, this book will make you all gooey inside. This is sure to stand the test of time to become a classic.

https://kat.cr/john-scalzi-old-man-s-war-epub-t10828957.html



Speaker for the Dead - Orson Scott Card (1986)

Speakers for the Dead are secular ministers who speak the truth of a person's life, rather than the sweet lies that are often told after a person kicks it. Filling such a role, Ender arrives at a colony to speak for several deceased humans, but he also seeks to prevent another xenocide (the act of wiping an alien species from existence). In the process, he gets yelled at, pissed on, and threatened with vivisection. There's not much more a person could ask for in a good story.

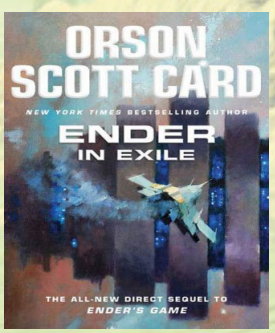
THE EYE OF THE WORLD
Robert Jordan
#1 New York Times bestselling author
"Jordan had come to dominate the world that Tolkien began to reveal."
—The New York Times

The Eye of the World - Robert Jordan (1990)

People love well-established series, and this is a good one, but it requires a major time commitment; written over a period of twenty-three years, the books total almost 12,000 pages, averaging 850 per novel (in paperback). For those who hate when books end too fast and miss the characters when the story is over, Jordan's Wheel of Time satisfies.
Filled with the destructive One Power, fearsome creatures, and duplicitous people, this is a rich universe colored with keen insights into the metaphysics of human existence—and swords, lots and lots of swords.

https://kat.cr/robert-jordan-the-eye-of-the-world-wheel-of-time-1-epub-t10828952.html



Ender in Exile - Orson Scott Card (2008)

Published more than twenty years (IRL) after the second novel in the Ender Saga, I recommend this book as your follow-up read to Ender's Game, as it tells the story between the first (Ender's Game) and second (Speaker of the Dead) novels.
Science fiction is often about mind-expanding concepts, and the books following Ender's Game are more apt to be described as philosophical in nature; and Card does a great job of adding to the genre's corpus. Though not an action novel, those who want to delve further into the mind of Ender Wiggen will enjoy this book.

By Optimus Pr1me

In a country far, far away, in a time that does not matter; on my second war zone tour, a group of Legionnaires was walking an afternoon patrol. Nothing seemed out of the ordinary compared to other days, and even though our senses were heightened, nothing seemed like there was anything wrong. It was an incredibly humid day and our water supply was going faster than we had anticipated. We decided to veer off the beaten path a little and head to the mountains to see if we could find a stream of fresh water.

An eerie feeling started creeping up on us, as if we were being followed. We formed a corral a few times when odd sounds were heard, but nothing was happening. We walked for about an hour through the mountainous area and we got to a little gorge. I was closing the ranks at the back and had given a signal to the front that I did not like the area and to be careful. We had been instructed to go through this area, so orders were being followed whether or not we liked it. The lead scout in the front signaled the all clear and climbed on a boulder, then, time slowed down as he came sailing down the boulder and hit the ground like a sack of potatoes. I was too far away to see what was happening, but the next thing I knew everyone was finding cover, including myself.

As I was about to seek refuge behind an old tree stump, I was thrown to the ground by an invisible force. I got back up and got behind the tree, locked and loaded my FAMAS and peeked over the edge of the tree. "Can you see anything?" was comm-ed amongst us, we were completely scattered around the little gorge. "No, they must be hiding on the rim of the high ground or could be gone", was relayed by our Officer at the time over our comms. "Let's regroup on the edge of the cliff" he said, "#4 and #5 cover fire", so my direct wingman and I offered cover fire as the others regrouped on the edge. I sunk back behind the tree and noticed blood on the rim of my sleeve. I looked down and what threw me to the ground earlier was a bullet that had hit me in the left arm!.

Looking to the fallen comrade near the rock, my wingman noticed he was still moving and laying out in the open. I looked at him….. he looked at me, I nodded and we made a run for it, grabbed his arms and dragged him further behind the rock, then all Hell broke loose. Artillery was being fired and we could hear it incoming. "Merde" (French for shit), my wingman said "now it looks like they mean business huh". I chuckled: " Seems like it brother". The artillery started hitting around us on the cliff edges; for those who do not know, getting artillery accurately into a gorge is near to impossible, if anything it was giving us cover from the soldiers who were hiding on the cliff. We dragged our fallen comrade to the others and leaned up against the rock formation.

"What're the orders?" I asked. "Let's see where they are and get the FR-F2 (sniper rifle) out and show them who's boss" we were told. I took my kit off and took the case with the FR-F2 off the side of it and put it together, two others did as well and we started crawling to vantage points under heavy FAMAS cover fire. Once I reached my position I started scanning every single bit of ground that I could see from my position, some disturbed rocks, no one there anymore, some cracked twigs on shrubs but no sign of anyone. Then in the cold of the afternoon, I saw a slight bit of steamed up breath coming from behind a stack of rocks, I concentrated on the rocks and noticed a tiny section where the sun was coming through and then not every once in a while, assuming this was someone moving behind it. I took the shot when it was dark in front of the little hole…the rest I will leave up to your imagination, I think you know what happened. Then out of nowhere, 4 soldiers were shooting wildly down the cliff formation, hitting one of my comrades who was laying most forward.

They needed to reload, a split decision was made. “Get him”, .. so my wingman and I ran up the hill, grabbed our bleeding comrade and ran back down at which time they had reloaded and started shooting once again. My wingman got hit in the leg, I got hit in my hand and shoulder but we got him down. .Our officer at the time had enough, “It’s Zulu time and Minimi (Light Machine Gun) time fellas”, and under heavy Minimi cover fire we were able to spread out, flanked over the side of the gorge and took out one after the other. After the last bullet was fired….. you do not know….. the silence is as if Mother Nature weeps for our destruction and the loss of her children. Them or us, upon inspection these were just some farmers turned soldiers, but they had a good commander who, I might add, had left them to their own devices.

We decided to bury our adversaries under the rocks in the gorge, as they too had only been following orders. These young men were only victims of the bloodlust of human kind, and our eternal want for what others have, in this case a country. We searched them first for ID though and there was none, so we left signs in the native language of the country, on the rocks with chalk to point to their location and regrouped and started making our way back. On our way back I lost consciousness once even though the wounds were only superficial. The intense heat was not helping with it and of course there was bloodloss, but we all made it back. None of us died but we paid the price of this day at a later stage, more about that a next time.

England to China and everywhere in between - the life of johnno23

I believe we all run across people on KAT who intrigue us, someone who sparks our curiosity and makes us wonder who they are beyond the KAT world. One of those people for me is johnno23. My position with the KATalyst magazine gave me the perfect excuse to ask johnno23 about his life and background – without seeming like a creepy stalker!

He was born in a tiny village in England called Sheperdswell, which sits in the middle of the countryside between Canterbury and Dover. He became a ward of the state at age 10 and lived in children's homes. Sadly, over the next 6 years he did not find a permanent home and seldom stayed in one place for longer than a couple of months at a time. Rather than make him an angry, bitter person, his lack of roots gave him what he calls "itchy feet syndrome".

Since he was 17 years old he has travelled. At first the only way he could travel was to find jobs that took him to faraway places. He worked in hotels as a cook; and these jobs took him to Wales, Spain, France, Israel, and Holland. In Holland he set up camp only to have his itch return. In 1989, when the road was calling to him once again, it was more difficult to get work in hotels. His solution – get involved in building and construction for trade shows. For 20 years he built displays for car shows and during this time he visited every major city around the globe – Moscow, Tokyo, Beijing, Los Angeles, Sydney, Geneva – and everywhere in between.

"Germany, France, Holland, Belgium, Italy – I know them all as well as the back of my hand. It is easier to say where I have not been – New Zealand, Deepest Africa and most of South America; than where I have been."

johnno23 is currently living in China. He feels that if you look to other areas of Asia where he could live, they all have good and bad.

"Political unrest and safety is my biggest concern as I am simply now too old to start over if the shit hits the fan. China is very safe when compared to most lands. I am aware of all the talk and sabre rattling about China this or that, but to be honest it's the pot calling the kettle black. America hacks everyone, and business as usual. China hacks USA and it is a media shit storm."

Johnno23's real life interests include DIY, fishing and eating! He claims he lives to eat and loves to build things for himself. No pre-fab for him, he finds a challenge both fun and rewarding.

I have read many of his blogs (that's how I first came to the conclusion that his story needs to be told), and I asked if he had to choose one of his own blogs that best describes who he is as a person, which would it be? His choice is https://kat.cr/blog/johnno23...t-of-this-and-a-bit-of-that/

You have taken a few moments to read my impressions of johnno23 – please take a few more to read the blog above that he believes best describes the man behind the screen name; in his own words.

Growing a Girl
(for T. Roethke)
by shebra

growing a girl

a daughter, so becoming a woman of her age.

at fifteen, wickedly ironic. foal and fury, willow and wasp all downy thistle,
a bird in her bones.

who among us has immunity?

she sleeps delight, wings away in skeins of dreams
spun from moons and stars alight.

breathless flower, playful leaf whispering to a wind tender tendril, laughing fern unfurling a lamb's love.

her skin singing,
warbling away fear, grief, heart, rending,
an a capella canary,
a nightinggale,
tempestuous

rhapsodic as a mockingbird.

her nest of eggs unplundered,
gently, now, go gently,
grace notes embracing blistered kisses, song sparrow spirit bursting between weeds, reeds and raucous whistles.

By wee_wiwie

Sad Violin

On and on, she keeps on moving
Up and down, she keeps on stumbling
Pulling her heart strings, playing it like a violin
Deep down she knows, it's just a wishful thinking.

In too deep, and she keeps on falling
Old scars barely healed, now her soul starts tearing
Why oh why, her mind keeps on asking
If only it's that simple, to just stop caring.

Those broken wings, oh how they sting
To be seen, she keeps on wishing
She can't breathe, for her heart's breaking
Still she smiles brightly, the best at hiding.

Just Before

Just before I leave
I wish you'd have known by then
How I'm your number one fan
How my love would never end

Just before I'm spent
I'll let you know where we stand
When we met in the pouring rain
I'll have you know that's how it began

Just before I go
I wish you'd have let me know
How lonely you would be
In a world without me.

Heart Ballad

Can't seem to help it, when your eyes met mine
I turn away, anywhere but front
Have to hide it, shine on my face
I need to confine; you being on mind

You keep me waiting, but that's fine
I don't mind, just take your time
I'll be here, if you ever need someone
I'll be your friend, whatever you want

Let me take a peek, show me your heart
Let me stay inside, don't keep it shut
I'll stand by your side, let me call you mine
You and I, till the end of the line.

Reject

Broken down body and mind
That soul wavers from the light
Consumed by the hatred
Marked, chosen by the dark.

Look at that soul
Forbidden; unable to cry
Willing the time to pass by
Haunted look upon the sky.

Desperate, gasping for air
Yet deeper and deeper she sinks
What oh what to become of her
A reject, undeserving of love.

Ordinary Soldier

I'm just an ordinary soldier
A man so brave and true
I've killed three men today
Because that's what soldiers do

I try not to make no fuss about it
Trying not to be loud
But I saved anothers life today
That makes me oh so proud

Sometimes when battles rage
I see the tragedy and pain
This causes me to wonder
If I'll ever get back home again

Sometimes at night in fitful sleep
My devils they return
But with the mornings rising light
I send them back to burn

I make no fuss about it
I've not got much to say
For I'm just an ordinary soldier
And it's the way I earn my pay.

My best friend I could ever ask for,
The only one I can talk to.
You listen to everything I have to say
I'm really going to miss you someday.

Your growing old,
Cannot walk as fast,
Don't worry,
I won't forget our past.

The comfort you offer,
Except when you pissed on my shoe.
It's okay, we've all made mistakes,
I'm really going to miss you someday.

You love to play with your ball,
Chasing it down the hall,
You're the fastest of them all,
But you still go get the ball.
You bring it back every time
Morning, noon and night, anytime.

It's almost time to go,
Don't worry about me.
Just do it slow
It's time to be free.

I love you with all my heart
I don't want to be apart.
The best friend I've ever had
I'm really going to miss you someday.
I love you, I hope you never stray..

Soldier Dad

I'm very small
I don't know much at all
I've learned to grow up so fast
So much future and not much past

I'm just eleven years old and often sad
I just want to hug my DAD
He protects us from far away
His life is in danger everyday

I see my mom cry
and ask why?
Her heart aches, but manages to smile
so we hold each other for awhile

I'm young, but very wise
But have come to realize
My soldier dad is brave and strong
I hope his deployment won't be long.

My Brothers

For those of whom I fought with and those I don't know your name,
we fought together,
you didn't die in vain.
We fought, you died,
I bled, and I cried,
even until our untimely end,
our country, our families, our brothers,
we shall defend.
May you always be my friend.

Life's Hurdles

People seek missions and challenges
Hurdles to take with avidity
Hurdles to measure up to
Hurdles to overcome
Mission and challenge and hurdle
Profligacy and troubles and pain
Higher and faster and more
Strive and triumph and pride
As if living day by day is not enough
To marvel at and grow by
To master and be enthusiastic about
I do not crave acceptance, approval, kudos
Do not lack exploit nor relish
Do not seek mission nor challenge
Do not require hurdles in any way
Besides those my everyday life holds
However small the tasks and trials
They suffice to valourize and satisfy
I see no need for inviting difficulties
When there could be little or none
Thus, I stay content, untroubled
Sleep peacefully
Dream pleasantly.

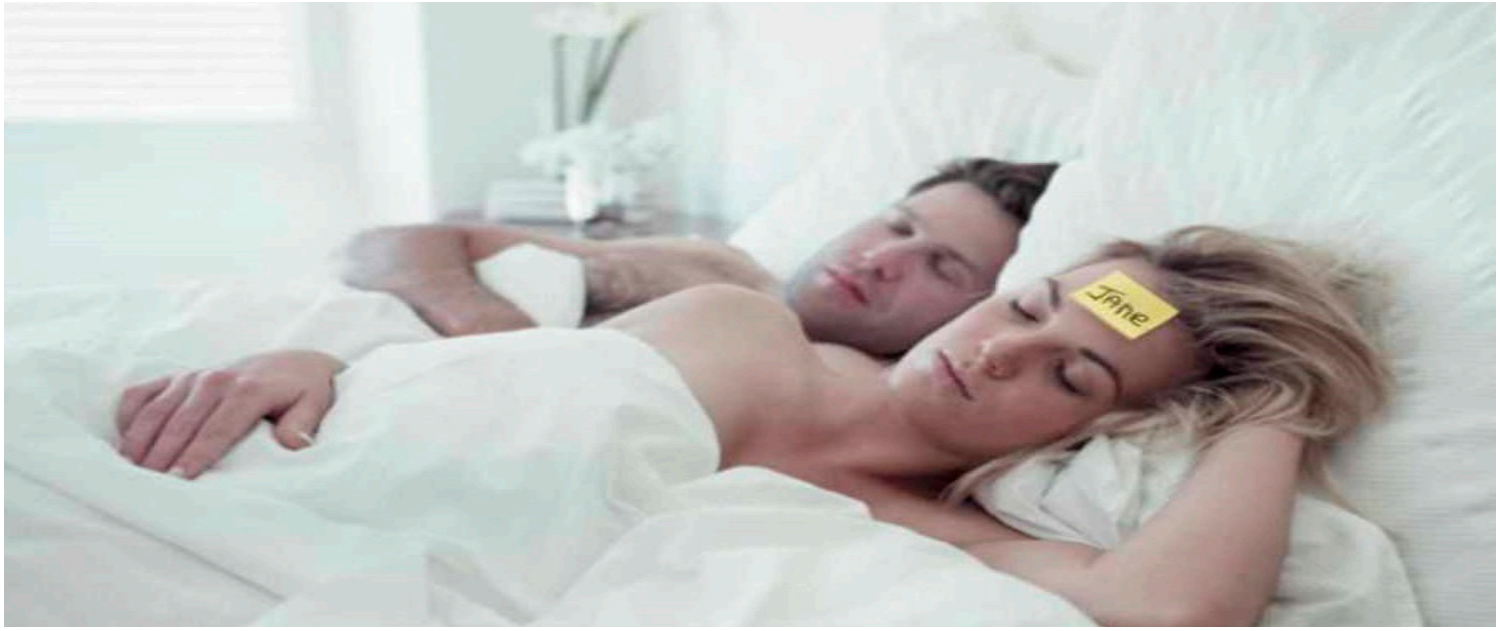
Truth

Truth is an elusive plant
That comes in various forms
Usually hidden amidst wild growth
And arrangements of cherished flowers
It can be grown in a homemade mixture
Of thought and feeling, vision and will
Or discovered unexpectedly in the wild
But the most rare and beautiful kind is
The one that can be seen with a serene mind
Anywhere, anytime.

OLDERTHANGOD's Stories

The Dance



Met this lady at the dry cleaner shop and she agreed to meet for a drink at 8pm. I introduced myself and she did the same... but the music was so loud I didn't catch it. I don't think she caught mine either but that didn't seem to bother her. We both had an enjoyable 3 hours drinking and dancing before we called it a night.

She agreed to come back to my apartment. When we got there she looked around, stared at the pro golf clubs and the exercise weights for a minute, taking in the fact it was a bona fide bachelor pad. I was making us drinks when she said to me..."have you got any small sticky notes?" My face must have looked puzzled but nodded yes and gave her the pack of them.

"I'm going to make this easy for you" she said and wrote JANE on the top sheet, peeled it off and started to walk down the hall. "Now" she said with one eyebrow raised and slipping one strap off her shoulder, "where's the bedroom?". He said 'second door on the right' and followed her in. She put the sticky note on the nightstand and said in a soft, sexy voice..."the note is just in case you forget, because after we're done you won't remember your own name!"

OLDERTHANGOD INTERVIEW

Mr.Blue

I caught up with Mr.Blue on the gang he was working with, laying fresh tarmac on the runway of an airport I'm not allowed to divulge here. The roar of planes landing 200 feet from our heads made conversation difficult, but he couldn't take the time off to go somewhere quieter. His right foot was stuck in the freshly laid surfacing, plus he was bursting for a waz, so without any apologies he hauled it out and commenced to do his duty right there. After he finished his "runway watering" he snarled at me and said…OK, what is it you wanna know?..So we got to it!

1/ There is a rumor you mistakenly used your PC mouse as a foot pedal, is there any truth to this ?
A/ No, but I have been known to operate the mouse with my feet. No mistakes here, only skill and perhaps some alcohol.

2/ If you were a superhero, would you wear your underpants on the outside ?
A/ Well the name underpants implies that this would not be the case. However, as UnderpantsMan they would be my only outerwear. So I guess both Yes and No, since some underpants would be covered by other underpants.

3/ Do you have a pet banana ?
A Yes, her name is Chiquita, and she's a slippery one!

4/ Is there any way you can make 2 + 2 = 5 ?
A/ I hereby declare 2 + 2 = 5, anyone who disagrees will likely face the wrath of the BanHammer.

5/ How do you get the spaghetti stains out of your underwear ?
A/ Throw them at the wall repeatedly until all the stains are on the wall. Sell wallpaper as art. Winning!

6/ If you could genetically engineer a 4 legged chicken, how would you catch the little f*er ?
A/ Hope it will slip on Chiquita's peels! Followed by a well-aimed bodyslam.

7/ If you're in the car, driving at the speed of light, what happens when you turn your headlights on ?
A/ I'm guessing combustion from all the air friction.

8/ Would you touch a sign that said 'Wet Paint', then piss & moan because you got paint on you ?
A/ Absolutely, the sign was written in Russian.

9/ How would you get off a nonstop flight ?
A/ Ejection seat.

10/ Have you ever been bitten by a female vampire ?
A/ That was a very traumatizing experience, I don't want to talk about it.

The follow-up to the interview was held under strict supervision by certified psychologists for the interviewer and the interviewee, due to severe weather conditions in Mr.Blue's underground nuclear bunker. And yes, that was Miss Piggy playing harp in the background.

MOVIE REVIEWS

by Guest Writer shebra

GETT: The Trial of Viviane Amsalem (2014) – Ronit Elkabetz, Simon Abkarian, Menashe Noy, Sasson Gabai; Director(s) - Ronit and Shlomi Elkabitz

"Patience is not the ability to wait but how you act while you're waiting." (J Meyer). An Israeli woman (Ronit Elkabetz) has been applying for three years for a divorce (gett) from a 30 year marriage with her devout but alienated husband. The drama takes place within a spartan courtroom. The script is masterfully tense, the actors brilliantly nuanced, and layers of comedy, rage, and absurdity make for a quite compelling movie. The camera shots are often from the sightlines of the actors, which makes for a very effective technique, ensuring the viewer also sees events from unusual angles and perspectives. Eventually the power of the rabbinical court, though grievously real, begins to appear pathetic in the face of the determination of this stoic woman, who stands firm against the systemic bondage represented by her marriage. An unusual and riveting film, this part of a trilogy is well worth viewing.
Rating: 9/10

Dear White People (2014) – Tessa Thompson, Tyler James Williams, Brandon P Bell, Teyonah Parris: Director - Justin Simien

A smart, sexy, racy film about students attending college in the USA, Dear White People is a satire about racing to be the most successful, progressive hipster, black or white, on campus - whether involved in student governance, radio, or a mixed-race relationship. The characters are complicated, vulnerable, handsome, bright – but also immature and superficial. There's a well-written screenplay, witty, insightful, socially adroit, and inclusive of the usual habits of college students. It embraces current technology such as apps, tweets and YouTube. However, while directed at "liberal" white people, it doesn't address deeper issues around race/race relations. What of the complicity of black men with their white male peers, or the morality of attending a "free your inner Negro party"? This flick doesn't quite attain its lofty goal of taking a hard look at politically-correct culture on campus, and by extension the still-existent, more dangerously cloaked racism apparent in the USA.

Hot Girls Wanted (2015) (documentary) - Various actresses; Directors - Ronna Gradus, Jill Bauer

"...there are more visits in a month to amateur porn sites than to Netflix, Amazon, and Twitter combined." (Huffington Post)
Amateur porn has gone mainstream. "Everyone watches porn," as one man wryly observes. This understated, disturbing documentary follows teens - that term being the #1 searched term on Internet pornography sites – as they launch themselves into the unregulated industry. The camera follows their naïve excitement and sense of autonomy through to their eventual understanding of the emotional and physical tolls of porn culture, which has one girl adeptly summarizing her work as "....we're meat; it's all about the guys." The film makes a poignant case for early, open, and direct discussion with young teens about sex and the porn industry.
Rating: 8/10

Ex Machina (2015) – Domhnall Gleeson, Alicia Vikander, Oscar Isaac: Director - Alex Garland (debut film)

"Ex Machina" begins as a classic thriller/psychodrama involving an unusual relationship triangle. A sharp young programmer becomes fascinated with a scientist who is creating a highly credible A.I. He wins a contest, and joins the God-scientist at a remote laboratory – akin to the setting of "The Shining", or the Bates Motel ("Psycho") - to interact with a prototype "female" robot. The scientist needs to demonstrate her well-rounded development, but proves his creation is more that of a juvenile fantasy. The edgy characters, male and female, will appeal to "geeks", but they are complex and reflect the development of gender roles in current societies, too. The script is tight, special effects superb, editing incisive, and the conclusion highly satisfying. Enjoy the surprises!

WebComixFan's Comically Skewed Views

Welcome back! In this issue's column, I'd like to talk about the Hugo Awards. (No, I'm not going to rant about the "Sad Puppies.") Specifically, I want to call your attention to the annual Hugo award for Best Graphic Story.

The Hugo Awards, as you may know, are a set of awards given annually for the best science fiction and fantasy works of the previous year. They were first given in 1953, have been given every year since 1955, and are widely regarded as the most prestigious awards in the field. And since 2009, they've been awarded to graphic novels as well as to the more traditional sort of novels.

In the seven years that the Best Graphic Story award has been active, thirty-six works from twenty-one series have been nominated. Not all are online comics, of course, but Web-based material has been well represented.

Here are some of the online comics that the Hugo awards -- and I -- think you ought to read.

First up is "Girl Genius" by Phil and Kaja Foglio. It won the first three Hugos for Best Graphic Story, in 2009, 2010 and 2011, and was nominated again in 2014. Described with the tagline, "Adventure, Romance, MAD SCIENCE!," it follows heroine Agatha Heterodyne in an alternate-history Victorian-style steampunkish (a.k.a. "gaslamp fantasy") setting. Phil is of course no stranger to fans of humorous fantasy art, having written and illustrated the "What's New with Phil & Dixie" series for Dragon Magazine, illustrated Robert Asprin's MythAdventures novels, and contributed artwork to Magic: The Gathering.

I'VE BEEN DIGGING FOR A LONG TIME.
I'M NOT ACTUALLY SURE WHY I STARTED. EXCEPT THAT IT SEEMED LIKE A GOOD IDEA AT THE TIME. I HAVE A FEELING THAT THERE WAS A BETTER REASON WHEN I STARTED OUT.
I THINK IT'S BEEN A COUPLE OF DAYS. AT LEAST. I'M OUT OF FOOD AND WATER. I CAN'T REMEMBER IF I BROUGHT ANY WITH ME OR NOT.
I ATE A WORM A FEW HOURS AGO. I DON'T WANT TO TALK ABOUT IT.
LET YOU GET THE WRONG IMPRESSION. WE WOMBATS ARE NOT IN THE HABIT OF TUNNELLING MADLY ABOUT, WITHOUT ANY SUPPLIES OR EVEN A MAP.
NOR ARE WE IN THE HABIT OF MISPLACING OUR MEMORIES OF WHERE WE'RE GOING OR HOW WE GOT THERE, EITHER.
UNFORTUNATELY, I HIT A PATCH OF BAD EARTH AT SOME POINT. YOU GET THAT SOMETIMES. IN SPOTS WHERE THERE'S GASES, SPOTS WHERE THERE'S DEAD AIR AND OLD POCKETS OF DEAD AIR. IT BUBBLES UP THROUGH THE DIRT AND SEEMS YOU LOOPY, SO YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT'S GOING ON. YOU GET DIZZY AND CONFUSED AND YOU CAN EVEN CONFUSED AND YOU CAN EVEN TUNNEL IN CIRCLES UNTIL YOU DROP DEAD. IT'S A NASTY STUFF.
NICE, DOGGY.
OTHER THAN THE FACT THAT I THOUGHT I WAS A SMALL STONE NAMED EDWARD FOR SOME TIME, I GOT OFF LIGHTLY.

Less well known, but no less talented, is Ursula Vernon, who won the Best Graphic Story Hugo award in 2012 for her Web comic, "Digger." This series tells the story of a no-nonsense wombat who finds herself stuck on the wrong end of a one-way tunnel in a strange land where nonsense seems to be the specialty. With the help of a talking statue of a god, an outcast hyena, a shadow-being of unknown origin, and an oracular slug, she seeks to find out where she is and how to go about getting back to her warren. With an irreverent sense of humor and a fantasy protagonist with a healthy dose of skepticism, "Digger" rapidly gained a huge following of devoted fans.

LOOK, AS MUCH AS I'D LIKE TO HELP YOU WITH YOUR IDENTITY PROBLEM, I'VE GOT TO GET BACK TO THE WARREN.
MY FOLKS ARE PROBABLY GETTING WORRIED, AND I'VE MISSED ALMOST A WEEK OF WORK.
DID YOU HEAR SOMETHING JUST NOW?
PROBABLY JUST THE PEOPLE FOLLOWING US.
CRUNCH!
GRAH!
OH!
OH! WHAT?
WHILE "CRUNCH" FAILS TO CAPTURE THE SAD, WISTFUL SOUND OF DAISIES BEING CRUSHED UNDERFOOT, IT'S ABOUT THE BEST WE CAN DO.
TURNED VAMPIRE, OF COURSE. DON'T Y' HAVE BIGHUSH WHERE Y' COME FROM, STRANGER? Y' LEAVE 'EM IN IT GROUND FOR TEN DAYS PAST TIME, AND THEY TURN. Y' CAN TELL BY T' BLOOD ON T' END.
WHAT JUST HAPPENED?
THEY KILL 'LONG T' GROUND SEEKING T' BLOOD OF T' LIVING. 'COURSE, THEY DON'T HAVE TEETH, SO IT'S MORE OF A BLOODY NUISANCE THAN ANYTHING.
AUTHOR'S NOTE: THIS IS AN ACTUAL, HONEST-TO-GOD LEGEND FROM THE BALKANS. I DIDN'T MAKE ANY OF IT UP.

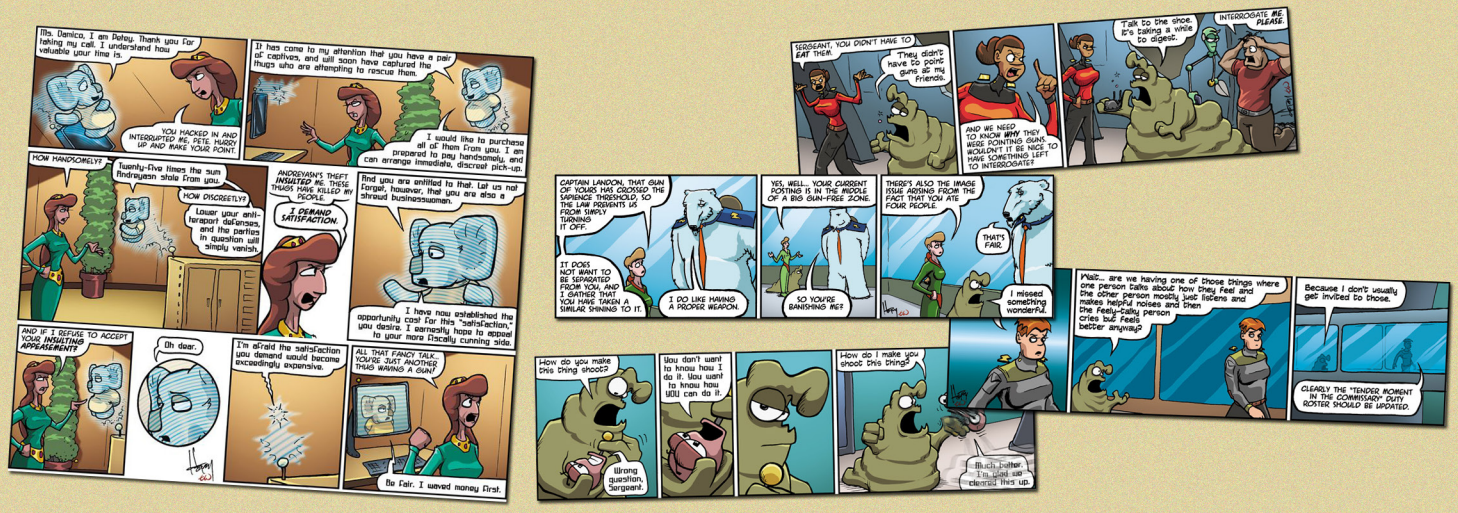
Though it hasn't actually won Best Graphic Story, Howard Tayler's "Schlock Mercenary" has the distinction of having been nominated for the award more often than any other series, in each of the award's first five years. The series follows the tribulations of a star-travelling mercenary company in a satiric, mildly dystopian 31st-century space opera setting. "Schlock Mercenary" was the inspiration for John Ringo's Troy Rising novels, which are unofficially set in the same universe, though at a much earlier time in its history.



Ms. Danica, I am Petey. Thank you for taking my call. I understand how valuable your time is.
YOU HACKED IN AND INTERRUPTED ME, PETE. HURRY UP AND MAKE YOUR POINT.
It has come to my attention that you have a pair of captives, and will soon have captured the thugs who are attempting to rescue them.
I would like to purchase all of them from you. I am prepared to pay handsomely, and can arrange immediate, discreet pick-up.
HOW HANDSOMELY?
Twenty-five times the sum Andruyasn stole from you.
HOW DISCREETLY?
Lower your anti-tarapori defenses, and the parties in question will simply vanish.
ANDREYASN'S THEFT INSULTED ME. THESE THUGS HAVE KILLED MY PEOPLE.
I DEMAND SATISFACTION.
And you are entitled to that. Let us not shroud businesswoman.
I have now established the opportunity cost for this "satisfaction," you desire. I earnestly hope to appeal to your more fiscally cunning side.
AND IF I REFUSE TO ACCEPT YOUR INSULTING ARRANGEMENT?
Oh dear.
I'm afraid the satisfaction you demand would become exceedingly expensive.
ALL THAT FANCY TALK. YOU'RE JUST ANOTHER THUG WAVING A GUN!
No fair. I waved money first.
SERGEANT, YOU DIDN'T HAVE TO EAT THEM.
They didn't have to point guns at my friends.
AND WE NEED TO KNOW WHY THEY WERE POINTING GUNS. WOULDN'T IT BE NICE TO HAVE SOMETHING LEFT TO INTERROGATE?
Talk to the shoe. It's taking a while to digest.
INTERROGATE ME, PLEASE.
CAPTAIN LANDON, THAT GUN OF YOURS HAS CROSSED THE SAPIENCE THRESHOLD, SO THE LAW PRESENTS US FROM SIMPLY TURNING IT OFF.
IT DOES NOT WANT TO BE SEPARATED FROM YOU, AND I GATHER THAT YOU HAVE TAKEN A SIMILAR SHINING TO IT.
I DO LIKE HAVING A PROPER WEAPON.
YES, WELL... YOUR CURRENT POSTING IS IN THE MIDDLE OF A BIG GUN-FREE ZONE.
SO YOU'RE BANISHING ME?
THERE'S ALSO THE IMAGE ISSUE ARISING FROM THE FACT THAT YOU ATE FOUR PEOPLE.
THAT'S FAIR.
I missed something wonderful.
Wait... are we having one of those things where one person talks about how they feel and the other person mostly just listens and makes helpful noises and then the feely-talky person cries but feels better anyway?
Because I don't usually get invited to those.
CLEARLY THE "TENDER MOMENT IN THE COMMISSARY" DUTY ROSTER SHOULD BE UPDATED.
How do you make this thing shoot?
You don't want to know how I do it. You want to know how YOU can do it.
How do I make you shoot this thing?
Much better. I'm glad we're clearing this up.
Wrong question, Sergeant.

The 2014 Hugo award for Best Graphic Story, interestingly, went to what could technically be considered a single cartoon from an online comic that isn't normally story-driven at all. On March 25, 2013, the picture you see here was posted with the title "Time" as cartoon #1190 of Randall Munroe's "xkcd." For the next four months, while Munroe continued to post new, unrelated "xkcd" cartoons on his regular daily schedule, he also updated "Time," on a generally hourly basis, with a succession of images that eventually turned out to be 3,100 frames of an animated story. It was "Time," and not "xkdc," per se, that won the Hugo.

Of course, as I noted already, the Hugo Award for Best Graphic Story isn't limited just to online comics, despite the fact that Web-based entries won in five of its first six years. Though they're not available in torrents I've uploaded myself, other Hugo winners and nominees are available here on KAT, and are worth checking out.

The winner in 2013 was Brian K. Vaughn and Fiona Staples's "Saga," a space opera fantasy series which has been aptly described as "Star Wars meets Game of Thrones." Bill Willingham's series about fairy tale characters living in the modern world, "Fables," has been nominated four times. Three other series, "Grandville" by Bryan Talbot, "Locke & Key," written by Joe Hill and drawn by Gabriel Rodiguez, and "The Unwritten," written by Mike Carey and drawn by Peter Gross, have each been nominated twice. Find 'em and read 'em!

Anime Reviews

Wolf's Rain

Wolf's Rain, known for its very well made animation and art (for a title from 2003, it's really gorgeous) is a must-watch for every anime enthusiast, and if you ask why then the answer is simple; because it's unique, or I like to think that it is.

Taking place in a world ruled by nobles, where the poor struggle to make their living, a lone wolf seeks Paradise. Nothing much is said about that imaginary world except that it looks futuristic and beat up by wars. And speaking of wars, each of the characters seems to be fighting their own wars against their fears and insecurities, that's one kind of character development we see. Characters were very well designed, they might look plain at first but you'll get to understand them later, knowing how everyone thinks and feels about themselves, others and also their journey to find Paradise.

The journey seems to be impossible at times, but each has their own view about Paradise, and I will leave that for you to experience. They had that effect on me, I ended up remembering all of their names, which happened because of their unique personalities, and I personally couldn't choose a single favorite character. The story takes a traditional approach of up and downs yet it doesn't feel that traditional, because of the themes involved, wolves being the main characters and well, of course, the twists.

Not much to say about voice acting, we all know the Japanese are the best at it and I'm not sure if there are any dubs so, Japanese was perfect for me. Same goes for the music, it's outstanding. All in all, Wolf's Rain isn't perfect for sure but it's a piece of art for those that appreciate it, it's deep, full of meanings, emotions, and action of course.

Consider giving it a chance if you're looking for a solid fantasy. Make sure to watch the 4 OVAs since they complete the story, and feel free to skip the recaps.

Mushi-shi

This isn't really a review but more like an overview of the anime, no spoilers, but not many details either, focusing on only the 1st season. "Mushi": the most basic forms of life in the world. Detailed information on Mushi is scarce because the majority of humans are unaware of their existence. Mushi-shi are those who research Mushi in hopes of understanding their place in the world's hierarchy of life.

Throughout his journey, Ginko, the Mushi-shi, travels around the world and helps people dealing with mushi, which the people tend to think of as curses and diseases since most can't see or feel them. Ginko's journey is divided into short stories, a story every episode.
The episodes might be considered as standalone, but a background story is going on somewhere,(probably during season 2 and 3, which we're not covering).

The short stories are very well made, the narration makes it even better, and there's narration at the start and end of the episode. Every episode starts with people having troubles with an illness, then Ginko appears and help them get rid of it by chasing out the mushi, in most cases. The whole anime is like a compilation of short stories, so progress is slow and the pace is monotone but it's still very enjoyable if you're patient enough.

Ginko is one of my favorite characters, very cool and composed, not sharing anything about his past since he doesn't know much about himself either. The voice actor did a great job in reflecting Ginko's personality through his voice, it's just perfect. I really loved the music, it made me feel the suspense while in a dark forest, joy when the people are happy and sadness when someone passes away, and music + narration was just a perfect mix, very well done.

The show isn't very dynamic so I don't recommend it to the people that seek action and development. On the other hand, if you're looking for a calming and relaxing experience, enjoy the story telling and follow what happens. I find it beautiful, and found myself thinking about creation, the universe, the world and also... the invisible at times while watching. Such anime won't make you excited as much as it will make you think, which I find is good for a change.

A VERIFIED UPLOADER'S JOURNEY

In this month's VUL story I am shining a light on a VUL that I personally download from frequently, SRIGGA_ .

Having first joined KAT a short year and a half ago, he has already logged over 2000 uploads and has a dedicated fan base who count on him for their favourite downloads.

SRIGGA_ is originally from Sri Lanka and uploads magazines, music/albums, as well as TV shows. He says, "Most people like to upload main stream TV shows, however, I like to upload non-main stream TV. My goal is to give people a variety with good upload speed."

He knows the importance of dedicated uploaders like himself because he began his journey in uploading when torrent sites first began, by being a downloader.

"In 2012/2013 I built myself a computer – a very fast computer. At that time my goal was to upload Sri Lankan music albums. After uploading a few, I noticed that not a lot of Sri Lankan people downloaded what I was uploading. I was frustrated by that when it hit me, why don't I upload American and UK TV shows instead? Since starting that I am much happier with what I'm doing, which is providing people with unlimited entertainment."

Because uploading can sometimes be a pretty thankless hobby, I always like to find out people's motivation for continuing, what keeps them going considering the hurdles and the lack of appreciation at times. His answer is honest and heartfelt.

"The comments of the people make me continue, the good and the bad."

He says that he has met some amazing people on KAT, as well as several other torrent sites and he is very grateful for that.

"I am also thankful for the people who cap the TV shows I upload because without them I would not have anything to upload."

He is happy to do the leg work to track down these shows that many, including myself, depend on him for. He says that he continues to upload because he knows there are people depending on his uploads who offer their thanks regularly, and that is the best motivation!

The Banner Saga (4.5/5)
By Guest Writer C63_XeroCore

Created by Ex-Bioware Developers, The Banner Saga was the result of a successful Kickstarter campaign which garnered over $700,000 for making this Indie game a reality. Stoic Studios has made a fun, engaging, story-driven turn-based RPG which as of right now stands proud at 80 on MetaCritic.

The game wastes no time to paint the dire situation of the world you are in, from Gods to the old mortal-alliances, everything is on shaky ground. If you are new to the turn-based games, Banner Saga does a good enough job to familiarize you with all the story/combat mechanics. The combat is very fun and thoughtful, every animation is hand drawn which looks absolutely stunning. Any character can die at any time in the story permanently, while the game throws very tough big/small decisions at you which might make you sweat in a good way.

The story does a phenomenal job at making you care about each character and the world you are in, while it will make you feel the struggle of a dying world. Each Hero has unique powers (upgradable) and money spending is a game between buying wearable items, buying food supply (which maintains good morale) for your people, or leveling up your Heroes. Between missions, talking to your companions happens in a comic-strip text based fashion. Because of branched storyline, it is worth playing twice.

The Banner Saga is similar in the veins of the Oregon Trail in terms of depression and exploration from one city to another.

Things I Liked

+ Turn-based combat mechanics
+ Money management
+ Easy to learn for beginners
+ Background music
+ Breathtaking hand drawn art/animation
+ Story focused/decisions alters the story
+ Fully realised world with its own lore
+ Permanent death of characters
+ No quick save/load, only checkpoints, which creates tension

Though every game has its pitfalls, keep in mind it is an Indie game with limited funding. That being said, the narrative text when talking to companions can be a little hard to grasp, figuring out who is talking to who. It features no voice acting (out of combat) unfortunately due to money constraints but it works for the better.

Long time turn-based RPG fans might fume at the limited enemy types to fight. The game is a little short for an RPG, about 10 Hours. The morale and your army numbers makes only a little difference in the actual combat, given you feel okay facing a text saying your actions killed 87 of your clansmen.

Lastly, a personal complaint, the story leaves many ground breaking secrets for the sequel to fill. But, that's for you to decide.

Nemesis43

Hi - to those of you who don't read comics, I'm Nemesis43 and I joined KAT around 4 ½ years ago. After wandering aimlessly for awhile I started uploading comics, and I developed a real 'love' for sharing as many different comics as possible. Just last week I received a 'cheevo' for 25000 uploads, a total that I still find hard to believe!

Every Wednesday I can be found doing my favorite uploading, which is the 0-day for New Release Uploads – which can be anywhere from 130 - 250 of some outstanding brand new comics here at KAT, every Wednesday. Something I am very happy about is that I have managed to do this every week for over 2 years now - but I honestly love what I do.

One small point that needs clarification - I am not the source of all the comics I upload - I do not scan them myself, really I am a distributor trying to make KAT the place to be for torrented 0-Day comics - I like to think I have succeeded at that.

So, comics or comic books… some consider these to be the choice of read for teenage boys but in my experience this is not at all the case. I just read somewhere recently that a comics place in this media rich age is wedged firmly between books and movies, and can also be considered a stepping stone between the two. I think that is spot on,

When you see the amount of comic book characters and themes that move into other main-stream media forms, you can get a better understanding. People like Stan Lee are pioneers in comic books with the Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. characters, which is now a popular TV show. Daredevil, which was introduced in April 1964 in comic book form, is now a TV show, just released by Netflix in April 2015, an incredible 51 years after release of the comic. And Stan Lee (age 92) still works with the TV production companies of both shows to insure his characters are being portrayed in the way they should be. It's amazing when you think about that!

The above is leaning heavily into the Marvel side of things, but the same is also true of DC Comics characters. The Flash, Green Arrow, Constantine and that's just the beginning, there is so much work being done by both of these comics 'giants' to ensure their creations in the world of comics progress into all available media formats. Using my uploads, and the downloads thereof to give you a quick peek into the movers and shakers in today's comic uploads.

Apart from the mega-popular 0-day releases there are a few that really stand out, all of which are DC Comics digital first titles. One of these could even be said to rival the 0-day releases for most popular single title. These are Batman - Arkham Knight, Mortal Kombat X and the extremely popular video game prequel… Injustice - Gods Among Us, while the other 2 are on their first run, Injustice is now into its fourth 'volume' with 'Year Four' and even though these 'digital first' titles are sometimes only 1/3 the size of the paper printed versions they are incredibly popular.

Marvel would be by far the most popular publisher, with DC Comics taking 2nd place and Image taking 3rd. While Marvel and DC have always been the big name comic publishers, Image seems to grow in popularity month by month and also with each new title they release - even releasing more titles this week than both Marvel and DC.

Both the big boys have chosen the Universe reboot as their summer story arc, which by its very nature will and has done (in the case of DC) wide ranging implications across all ongoing titles. This means the wrapping up of many other titles, with plenty of new ones to take their places. While all this should make for great reading I remain totally unimpressed with the idea of rebooting the Universe, even more so doing it twice within a 5 year period, I can't help but think 'why?', 'were the last 5 years a mistake'?

Why wipe the slate clean?, hopefully some of the new titles involving new character partnerships and general mix-ups from within both publishers newly rebooted universe, will make the whole thing worthwhile.

Grab yourself next week's downloadable offerings - I recommend using the 'uploads' tab in my profile to see my latest postings, or you can opt to use KAT's browse function and select comics, if you want to see all of the latest comic uploads.

A store that sells husbands has just opened, where a woman may go to choose a husband from among many men. The store is composed of 6 floors, and the men increase in positive attributes as the shopper ascends the flights. There is, however, a catch. As you open the door to any floor you may choose a man from that floor, but if you go up a floor, you cannot go back down except to exit the building.
So a woman goes to the shopping center to find a husband.
On the first floor the sign on the door reads:
Floor 1 - These men have jobs.
The woman reads the sign and says to herself, "Well, that's better than my last boyfriend, but I wonder what's further up?" So up she goes.
The next floor sign reads:
Floor 2 - These men have jobs and love kids.
The woman remarks to herself, "That's great, but I wonder what's further up?" And up she goes again.
The next floor sign reads:
Floor 3 - These men have jobs, love kids and are extremely good looking.
"Hmmm, much better" she says. "But I wonder what's upstairs?"
The next floor sign reads:
Floor 4 - These men have jobs, love kids, are extremely good looking and help with the housework.
"Wow!" exclaims the woman, "very tempting. BUT, there must be more further up!" And again she heads up another flight.
The fifth floor sign reads:
Floor 5 - These men have jobs, love kids, are extremely good looking, help with the housework and have a strong romantic streak.
"Oh, mercy me! But just think...what must be awaiting me further on?" So up to the sixth floor she goes.
The sixth floor sign reads:
Floor 6 - You are visitor 6,875,953 to this floor. There are NO men on this floor.
This floor exists solely as proof that women are impossible to please.

Two old guys were chatting.....
One said to the other: "My 85th birthday was yesterday. The wife gave me an SUV".
Other guy responded: "Wow, that's amazing!! Imagine, an SUV!! What a great gift!"
First guy: "Yup!! Socks, Underwear and Viagra!"

A woman came up behind her husband while he was enjoying his morning coffee and slapped him on the back of the head.
"I found a piece of paper in your pant pocket with the name 'Marylou' written on it," she said, furious.
"You had better have an explanation."
"Calm down, honey," the man replied.
"Remember last week when I was at the dog track? That was the name of the dog I bet on."
The next morning, his wife snuck up on him and smacked him again.
"What was that for?" he complained.
"Your dog called last night."

The mother of a 17-year-old girl was concerned that her daughter was having sex. Worried the girl might become pregnant and adversely impact the family's status, she consulted the family doctor.
The doctor told her that teenagers today were very willful and any attempt to stop the girl would probably result in rebellion. He then told her to arrange for her daughter to be put on birth control and until then, talk to her and give her a box of condoms.
Later that evening, as her daughter was preparing for a date, the woman told her about the situation and handed her a box of condoms.
The girl burst out laughing and reached over to hug her mother saying: "Oh Mom! You don't have to worry about that! I'm dating Susan!"

A college teacher reminds her class of tomorrow's Final Exam.
"Now class, I won't tolerate any excuses for you not being here tomorrow. I might consider a nuclear attack or a serious personal injury or illness, or a death in your immediate family but that's it, no other excuses whatsoever!"
A smart-ass guy in the back of the room raised his hand and asks, "What would you say if tomorrow I said I was suffering from complete and utter sexual exhaustion?"
The entire class does its best to stifle their laughter and snickering. When silence is restored, the teacher smiles sympathetically at the student, shakes her head, and sweetly says, "Well, I guess you'd have to write the exam with your other hand."

A husband sends a text to his wife:
"Honey, I got hit by a car outside of the office. Tina brought me to the hospital ER.
They have been taking tests and doing x-rays.
The blow to my head is very strong, may be serious.
Also, I have 3 broken ribs, a broken arm, and a compound fracture on my left leg.
And the doctor said they may have to amputate my right foot."
Wife's response: "Who the hell is Tina?"

A child asked his father, "How were people born?"
So his father said, "Adam and Eve made babies, then their babies became adults and made babies, and so on."
The child then went to his mother, asked her the same question and she told him, "We were monkeys then we evolved to become like we are now."
The child ran back to his father and said, "You lied to me!"
His father replied, "No, your mom was talking about her side of the family."

Sex is like a gas station. Sometimes you get full service, sometimes you've gotta ask for service and sometimes you have to be happy with self service.

A man is at the bar drinking with his buddies, orders a shot, and immediately pukes all over his shirt.
"Wha' my gonna do now? My wifez gonna kill me" he mumbles.
"Relax," one of his buddies says, "give me a $10 dollar bill."
The friend folds up the bill and puts it in the drunk guy's shirt pocket. "Tell your wife some drunk puked on you and gave you 10 bucks to have your shirt cleaned."
"Thass a great idea mate!"
When the drunk gets home his wife wakes up and angrily asks "Where have you been? What happened to your shirt?"
He tries to put on a sober voice and says, "Relaaax honey, some drunk guy puked on me and gave me ten bucks to have my shirt cleaned, see for yourself!"
The drunk's wife reaches in his pocket, grabs the money, and says, "There's 2 $10 bills in here!"
"Oh yeah, he shit in my pants too"!

One night a police officer was staking out a particularly rowdy bar for possible violations.
At closing time, he saw a fellow tumble out of the bar, trip on the curb, and try his keys in five different cars before he found his.
Then he sat in the front seat fumbling around with his keys for several minutes. Everyone else left the bar and drove off.
Finally he started his engine and began to pull away. The police officer was waiting for him.
He stopped the driver, read him his rights and administered the Breathalyzer test.
The results showed a reading of 0.0. The puzzled officer demanded to know how that could be. The driver replied, "Tonight I'm the designated decoy!"

The room was full of pregnant women with their husbands. The instructor said, "Ladies, remember that exercise is good for you. Walking is especially beneficial. It strengthens the pelvic muscles and will make delivery that much easier.
Just pace yourself, make plenty of stops and try to stay on a soft surface like grass or a path."
"Gentlemen, remember -- you're in this together. It wouldn't hurt you to go walking with her.
In fact, that shared experience would be good for you both."
The room suddenly became very quiet as the men absorbed this information.
After a few moments a man, name unknown, at the back of the room, slowly raised his hand.
"Yes?" said the Instructor.
"I was just wondering if it would be all right if she carries a golf bag while we walk?"

Every day Francesca went to the cemetery in her village, to water the flowers on the grave of her deceased husband Enzo.
When she was finished she always walked backwards when leaving the grave.
One day her friend Bianca asked, "Francesca why do you always leave the cemetery walking backwards?"
Francesca answered, "When Enzo was alive he always told me, 'You've got such a great ass it could bring a dead man back to life.' So I'm not taking any chances!"

Did you hear about the flasher who was thinking of retiring?
He decided to stick it out for one more year!

Did you hear about the guy who finally figured out women?
He died laughing before he could tell anybody.

Suzuka 1989 - A F1 Classic

by Optimus Pr1me

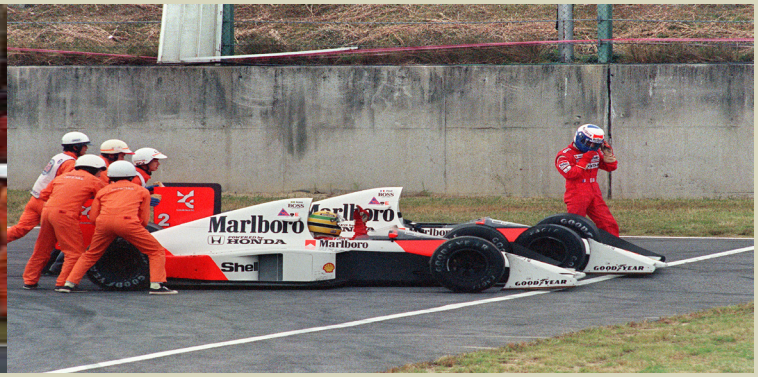
The year is 1989, mid October and it is looking like Alain Prost is going to become World Champion F1 at the last race of the year in Tokyo. My father, out of the blue one evening says to me: “Want to go see it?” Me being half French/half Australian, jumped at the opportunity, so done, we flew out on October 17th headed for Japan.

After spending some time looking at the sights and sounds of Tokyo, we made our way to the hotel near the Suzuka circuit. All the teams and the whole circus was already there, my father had bought Paddock tickets as well, so we spent a lot of time looking at the cars and talking to drivers, and even a few team bosses. I was star struck to meet Alain Prost, probably the kindest, soft spoken driver I have ever met. He was very humble and polite and of course being French, he loved being able to speak French to us.

Race day came and we had made our way to the grandstand early in the morning to wait for things to come, as always the pre-racing is always interesting but we were both itching for the F1 to start. My father kept rubbing his hands together and said on numerous occasions, “This is going to be a bang of a season final, I can feel it”. In retrospect he was completely right.

All the cars were lined up on the grid and the buzz around, then as per usual seemed even more hectic and frantic than normal, especially around the cars of the 2 main contenders, Ayrton Senna and Alain Prost. There it was again, that eerie silence before the start, then with the sound of a thousand jets they took off, screaming for the first corner, my father shaking his head at the Japanese audience who pretty much all had ear plugs in. He whispered to me: “It’s like going to a concert and sticking your fingers in your ears, yeah?” I wholeheartedly agreed.

The race was going well for Prost, keeping Senna at bay after he lost his pole position right at the start, opening a 5 second lead from memory. Senna kept trying to get closer to him, not giving up in his usual style but “The Professor”, which was Prost’s nickname, kept his lines and was driving with inhuman accuracy. Some call it boring, I call it poetry, he never wavered from his lines, never locked up.



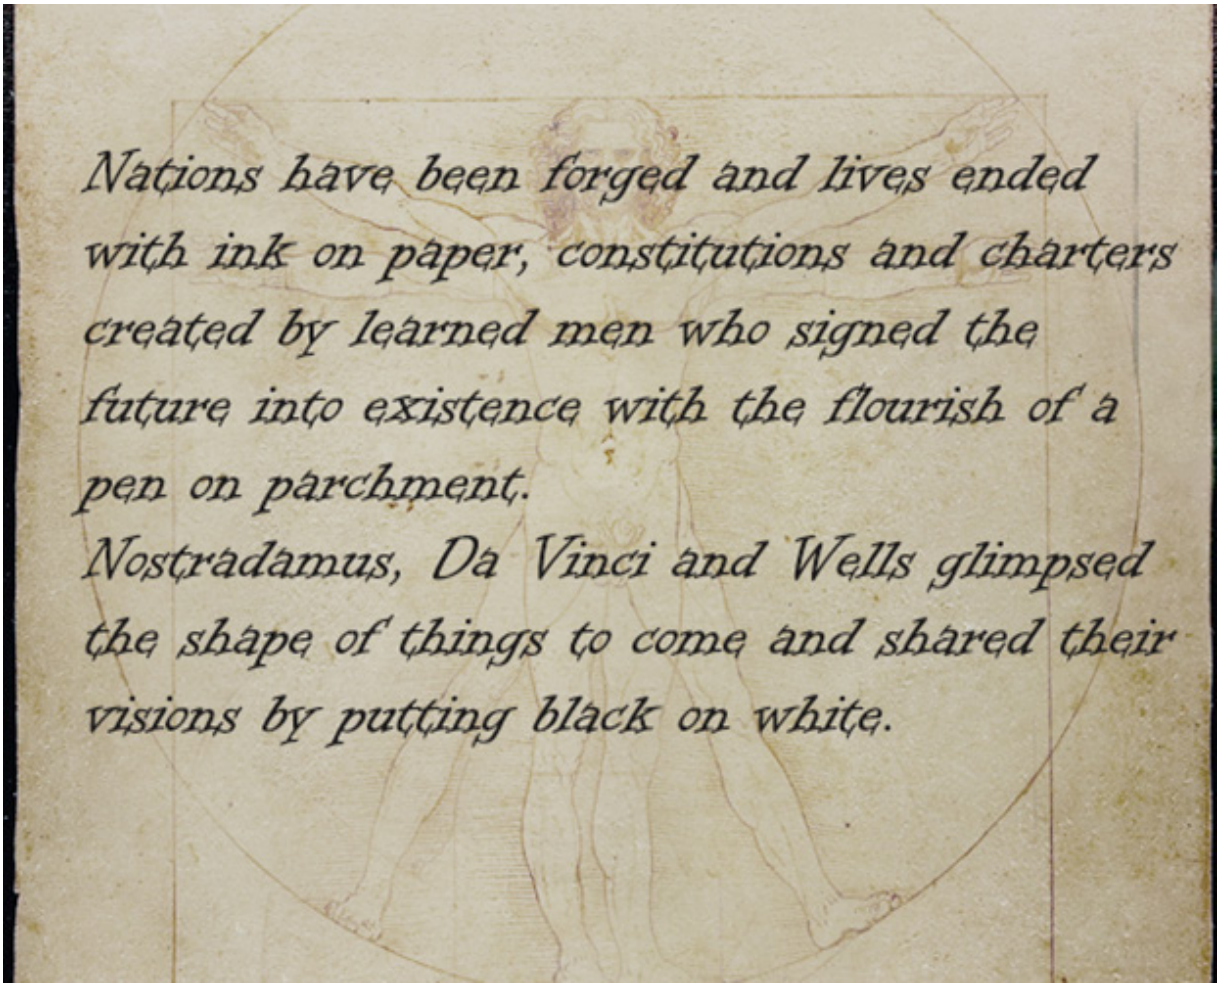
Lap 46 arrived and with only 7 laps to go, before it would be Prost who would take home the crown, he was only leading by just over a second. Senna darting and poking behind him, the cars, both McLaren, were completely identical to each other so this was down to the drivers... up on our feet every time they came roaring by, then Senna made his move on Prost. On the final chicane, the crowd gasped and held their breath as Senna went for the inside line but Prost kept to his racing line and they both slid into the gravel pit.

“Prost is world champ son!”, my Father exclaimed, but with help from the marshalls, Senna managed to get the car going again and went back out. Prost was out and walking back to the pit, shaking his head. Senna pitted to have his nose cone repaired...Nannini in the Benetton car screamed by. As Senna came out of the pit, he only had 5 laps to catch Nannini, then the Brazilian showed the world what a racer does best. He hammered out the 2 lap times faster than anyone could have imagined possible, and in one fell swoop overtook Nannini in just 2 laps at the same chicane, again on the inside, this time it worked out and Senna took the flag to take the World Championship, or so everyone thought.

The FIA, however, disqualified Senna for not taking the chicane properly after the Prost incident, Senna appealed the decision and was handed a $100,000 fine and a suspended 6 month ban. Senna lost the title that day but those last 7 laps of that race established his legend. He was magnificent, he took that car and made it have wings, pushing beyond the limits of himself, the car and stunning everyone, whether or not they liked F1 or not. It also established the bitter rivalry between Prost and Senna and we all know what happened the year after. More about that in another episode later.

My father and I stayed on the grandstand for hours after the race, everyone had pretty much left, we just sat there talking until track officials urged us to leave, as the circuit was closing. I do not think we stopped talking about those 7 laps for weeks. We were both witness to the most amazing racer we had ever seen become a legend.

What an archaic and restrictive form of communication words alone seem to be now. We're all so used to being able to click somewhere on the page or add animation, or perhaps use video; but alas options like these are denied to me here because this is of course, the written word.



Nations have been forged and lives ended with ink on paper, constitutions and charters created by learned men who signed the future into existence with the flourish of a pen on parchment.
Nostradamus, Da Vinci and Wells glimpsed the shape of things to come and shared their visions by putting black on white.

Of all the great inventions that have contributed to the furthering of human knowledge perhaps none has the power of the printing press.
When words were able to be mass produced it quite literally changed the world. For the first time an idea could be put on paper and sent to a thousand destinations around the world without the need for a scribe or monk to painstakingly reproduce by hand.

"Scientia potentia est," "Knowledge is power" and no truer thing has ever been said and there has never been a better way of sharing knowledge and by implication power, than with the written word.

WORDS WHEN WRITTEN HAVE THE POWER TO BIND IN A WAY THAT THE
SPOKEN WORD DOES NOT. WHEN YOU WISH TO EXTRACT A PROMISE FROM SOMEONE A CONTRACT IS DRAWN UP
AND WHEN MAGICIANS WISH TO CAST
REALLY POWERFUL SPELLS WORDS
ALONE ARE INSUFFICIENT, A MARK
MUST BE MADE, WHETHER IT BE CARVED IN STONE OR A STICK IN
THE SOIL OR BLOOD ON THE FLOOR,
IT IS UNIVERSALLY UNDERSTOOD
WITHOUT NEEDING TO BE STATED, THAT THE WRITTEN WORD HAS POWER.

It is of course said that a picture is worth a thousand words, but where words are precise a picture is open to interpretation. I can state my intentions with a few words and if those words are carefully selected they leave no room for ambiguity, does a picture speak with such clarity or purpose?

Take a look at the picture above; are the dots a uniform white? Or are some of them black? It's hard to tell, but I can state with absolute certainty that all of my full stops are black. You see, The Written Word, nothing even in this day and age is its equal.

Soap Anyone?

Whether you love them or hate them, British Soaps are firmly planted on TV schedules in many countries around the world. I recall scoffing at people who said they followed Coronation Street and were avid fans – although back in those days I made fun by calling them "rabid" fans. Surely you would have to be frothing at the mouth and half mad to enjoy watching people gather at a local pub and gossip?

These days, I am one of those fans who cannot wait for the next episode to be uploaded, compliments of our own deep-60. For those of you who don't follow any of the top spot British soaps, I thought I would highlight the history of each.

The most famous of all, Coronation Street first aired on December 9, 1960 and was originally only commissioned as a 12 part series. Due to the show's success from almost the beginning, it still airs to this day. Here we are almost 55 years later and Coronation Street (Corrie) is still the most watched program on British television.

The BBC's answer to Corrie came on February 19, 1985. The original idea was to have it set in a caravan park (trailer park) with the title of Square Dance. What it became was filmed in London's East end and most appropriately called EastEnders. It was purposely made to be more gritty than Corrie. It quickly gained popularity and stands proudly among the highest rated TV series on British television today.

Not to be forgotten in this mix is the long running Emmerdale (known as Emmerdale Farm until 1989). Emmerdale has been broadcast since October 16, 1972 and is the second oldest soap next to Coronation Street. Set in a rural fictional town, Emmerdale does not appeal to as broad an audience as Coronation Street or EastEnders, but still has good ratings and a healthy fan base.

I would encourage all fans of these shows to visit deep-60's Release thread (below) for the latest episodes, or one of the fan pages. You'll even see me there from time to time!

GUNFIGHTERS 2

The young girl followed behind the sheriff, she still walked a little stiffly but the wound in her side was almost healed now. He didn't know she was there, but since she heard that kin of the recently shot-to-pieces Jonas brothers were considering revenge, she had taken it upon herself to keep an eye on him, especially as it was his gun arm that was shot. He was no gunfighter she knew, but he was faster than the average cowhand, being the sheriff he had to be, just to keep the peace.

She had just turned 15 a week ago and was wearing her first ever corset, laced up by Maria from the Hay and Feed store. It was cutting into her and restricting her movements, and she also hated the long floor length dress she had to wear too. She wondered what was so bad about her ordinary work pants and shirt. But as Maria had pointed out, at a certain age, young ladies didn't walk around looking like a boy.

She skillfully side-stepped a horse muffin and only just noticed the glint of a knife in the moonlight, the shadow detached itself from the side of a building in a blur and lunged at the sheriff…he was taken by surprise, but was still fast enough to block the knife arm before it pierced his chest, they both went down in the dust, both struggling to get the upper hand...

The would-be assassin was astride the sheriff, the girl stepped in quickly, up-ended the Winchester and gave the killer a hard smack in back of the head with the butt. The killer dropped like a rock, hat fell off and all of her hair came tumbling down. The young girl recognized her right away as one of the whores from the saloon. She couldn't recall her name but had seen her hanging around with one of the dead brothers.

The sheriff heaved himself painfully to his feet and said 'thanks kid, where you been hiding, and what the hell are you wearing there?' 'Blame Maria', she replied, 'she made me wear all this stuff and I can hardly breathe'. The sheriff leaned against a post getting his breath and took a longer look at his daughter... he waved a forefinger at her in nonchalant manner and said 'when did you grow…err...them there'? His voice tapered off to an embarrassing silence.

The whore on the ground came around and looked at both of them with venom in her eyes, she started to get up and two shots rang out, one of them from a Winchester...the whore flopped over with two bullets in her chest and lay still.

The sheriff walked over to the body, picked up the knife, turned back to the girl and said 'turn around'.....
